Council reeling over 'N-word'

Debate grinds to a halt. Councillor goes for 'shock value' in explaining resignation from LTC board; retraction demanded

City council dealt with business in quick order on Tuesday night — until Coun. Sandy White dropped the N-word.

White, who recently submitted her resignation from the London Transit Commission, attempted to explain her decision. She said a bus advertisement featuring pop singer Katy Perry wearing a bra with cans of whipped cream pointing out was inappropriate.

"I do not believe that pictures like this belong on the side of a family service," White said, referring to LTC buses where the ad was displayed.

Other business

- A recommendation that city staff explore existing bylaws and report back on a food-truck pilot project passed 15-0.
- Council voted 15-0 to refuse to amend city rules that would have allowed a methadone clinic at 527 Wellington St.

White then asked councillors Bill Armstrong and Paul Hubert to apologize for their recent comments that questioned the validity of her reason for resigning. Hubert had said he would not support the motion to accept White's resignation.

While Hubert did not respond to White's request for an apology, Armstrong did, but instead of apologizing, he started to explain his comments.

It was during this exchange that White used the N-word, catching other councillors off-guard and sending the London Twittersphere into high gear.

"If the advertisement had used n---r, everyone would automatically know it's offensive," White said in an attempt to make her motive better understood.

After Mayor Joe Fontana stepped in to contain the debate, he gave the floor to Coun. Matt Brown.

"For the last several minutes, I have sat and thought about a word that was said around this horseshoe," Brown said. "I heard a word uttered by a colleague, and I need to acknowledge that and I think it would be appropriate for the member to issue a retraction. That word has no place in our society."

White did not retract her statement, saying she had used the word for "shock value" to make her point.

Fontana ended the debate and said he would review the transcripts of both the committee and council meeting.

Market Lane, Bud Gardens prepping for prime time

Sound and light show, Market Lane revamp to debut this weekend

JIM REYNO
jim.reyno@metronews.ca

Let's light it up, London.

Londoners can get a look at a couple of highly anticipated downtown attractions for the World Figure Skating Championships this weekend.

The City of London's sound and light show will premiere on Sunday at 9 p.m. at Budweiser Gardens.

The Tree of Light will lead the audience through the movements of a figure skater, as well as the history of London. The aim of this video-mapping performance is to bring Londoners and visitors together to share a multimedia experience they won't forget.

A team of 20 media artists created this projection show, integrating archive photos with 2D and 3D animation.

The production, created by Montreal-based Moment Factory, clocks in at a little more than 10 minutes. It will be shown on the east wall of Bud Gardens at the corner of King and Talbot Streets.

Shows will be presented at 8 and 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, and at 8, 9 and 11:20 p.m. on Saturday, March 16, during the skating worlds.

Ice time

The World Figure Skating Championships will be held in London From March 11 to 17.

Kicking off the weekend will be a preview of the newly revamped Market Lane on Friday at 7 p.m.

The pedestrian laneway links Dundas Street to the north entrance of the Covent Garden Market, just beside Fanshawe College's future School of Applied and Performance Arts.

Londoners are invited to join Mayor Joe Fontana and guests for a look at the new Market Lane, as well as a sneak peak at the program-mable light canopy composed of 1,430 coloured LED lights.

The canopy creates displays with moving colour-shifting lights. Different atmospheres are created reflecting the changing of the seasons, special holidays and events.

Market Lane will be open to the public this Friday through Sunday, March 17. It will then be partially open on weekends to allow for exterior architectural work. The full reopening is scheduled for June.

Employees of AutoTrim Design & Signs apply beige covering to the east side of Budweiser Gardens on Tuesday. Workers are preparing for the World Figure Skating Championships' light and sound show, covering windows on the Gardens so videos can be projected, as well as installing infrastructure on Talbot Street and Market Square. Gas plants. Liberals did not intentionally mislead Ontario house: Speaker

The Speaker of Ontario's legislature has ruled Liberal cabinet ministers were not in contempt and did not intentionally mislead the house about the release of documents on cancelled gas plants in Oakville and Mississauga.

Speaker Dave Levac says it's clear then-energy minister Chris Bentley and other Liberals were wrong last September to insist all gas-plant documents had been released when another 20,000 pages turned up in October, and more last month.

However, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary,

It's believed the truck, which was hauling computer equipment, had two drivers inside when it dove into the river at 11:30 a.m.

The conference is especially helpful for students who are unsure which career path to choose, since there’s considerable diversity in the employer crop. Managers from the financial, health care, construction, not-for-profit and marketing industries — among others — will be on hand.

“It helps students to open their eyes to what’s in London,” Collins added.

Human trafficking is a real issue in London, forum shows

Forced labour, sex slavery. Anecdotal evidence, location point to the crime occurring in the London area

Did you know a recent study has revealed that about one in five London sex workers were forced into the trade?

That was a popular piece of information being discussed during Tuesday’s human-trafficking forum, held at the Hilton hotel. The event, hosted by Western University’s Violence Against Women Learning Network, brought in national experts to speak about policies, human-rights issues and the underlying impacts of human trafficking.

“There is evidence to suggest human trafficking is happening in other major municipalities,” London police Det. Amanda Pfeffer said. “I am confident in saying human trafficking exists in London.”

Although Pfeffer says the London Police Service has not charged anyone with human trafficking, it’s undoubtedly occurring. They’ve charged many people with similar offences, such as aggravated assault and extortion.

“London is geographically situated (in the middle of) the Windsor-Toronto corridor,” added Louise Pitre, executive director of Sexual Assault Centre London. “So, we know there’s trafficking activity somewhere.”

Discussion continues on Wednesday

- Members of six anti-trafficking coalitions from across Ontario will meet to share initiatives about the issue in what’s being called the Human Trafficking Knowledge Exchange.

The sexual assault centre, along with more than a dozen social agencies, Non-governmental organizations and community members, form the London Coalition Assisting Trafficked Persons. The group has received a $50,800 grant from the Ontario Trillium Foundation, according to a news release distributed at the forum.

The money will be used to accomplish three things: Develop and implement staff training curriculum; train at least 120 front-line workers and launch an interactive website on human trafficking.

“It’s such a complicated issue, so it’s important to maintain a collaborative approach,” Pfeffer said about being involved in the coalition.

The all-for-one, one-for-all attitude helps provide “wrap-around coverage” to those who have been forced into labour or sex slavery, says Sue Wilson, a leader behind the initiative.

“There’s strong anecdotal evidence from the aboriginal community that there’s lots of human trafficking of girls and women in the London area,” she said.

Police seek dozens of women allegedly videotaped by psychiatrist

London police are widening their investigation of psychiatrist Stanley Dobrowolski.

Police said Tuesday they are looking to identify 34 women who were allegedly videotaped by Dobrowolski without their knowledge during physical exams between 2007 and 2012. If you were a patient of Dobrowolski’s in that time frame, you’re asked to contact police.

This is the latest development in the case against Dobrowolski.

Last November, Dobrowolski was charged with one count each of sexual assault and voyeurism. In January, police searched the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario and computers seized from Dobrowolski’s office at 47 Victoria St. in London.

At that time, police identified seven more incidents of Dobrowolski allegedly videotaping women without their knowledge at his office. While a number of those women have been identified and interviewed, 34 have not, police said.

Former patients can contact police at 519-660-5842, or online at project@police.london.ca. Support is also available through Sexual Assault Centre London at 519-438-2272.

Hugo Chavez's death elicits mixed reactions around the globe

Venezuelan president dead. The passing of the fiery leader brings varied responses — some called it a tragedy while others saw it as an opportunity for change

Reactions to the death of Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez were as mixed, polemical and outsized as the leader was in life, with some saying his passing was a tragic loss and others calling it an opportunity for Venezuela to escape his long shadow.

Seen as a hero by some for his anti-U.S. rhetoric and gifts of cut-rate oil, others considered him a bully.

A teary-eyed Bolivian President Evo Morales, one of Chavez's closest allies and most loyal disciples, declared that "Chavez is more alive than ever."

"Chavez will continue to be an inspiration for all peoples who fight for their liberation," Morales said Tuesday in a televised speech. "Chavez will always be present in all the regions of the world and all social sectors. Hugo Chavez will always be with us, accompanying us."

In Cuba, which has come to rely on Venezuela for billions of dollars in oil at preferential terms during Chavez's presidency, some were worried that the loss of their number one ally could have a negative ripple effect on the island.

Family feuds over gun remarks made by Pistorius' dad

A public feud erupted Tuesday within the family of Oscar Pistorius, the double-amputee Olympian charged with murdering his girlfriend, as the runner and his relatives distanced themselves from comments his father reportedly made about guns and crime in South Africa.

South Africa's ruling party, the African National Congress, also waded into the family dispute. A spokesman for the party accused Henke Pistorius, the runner's father, of racism for his observations reported in British newspapers about crime against white South Africans and the suggestion that the ANC government isn't adequately protecting them.

The Pistorius family and the reputation management firm it has hired are working to head off any negative publicity or controversy that might possibly have a bearing on the outcome of the runner's case, which could see him jailed for life if convicted of premeditated murder.

They quickly issued a statement early Tuesday morning saying the family "is deeply concerned" about the father's interview that "doesn't represent the views of Oscar or the rest of the Pistorius family."

The Telegraph and Mirror newspapers quoted Henke Pistorius as saying the family owns handguns for self-defence. That is not unusual in South Africa.

Baird. Palestinians could face 'consequences' for pursuing Israel at the UN

Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird has told a powerful pro-Israel lobby that Palestinians will feel "consequences" from Canada if they pursue the Jewish state at the International Criminal Court.

Baird issued the warning just as the federal government considers whether to end hundreds of millions of dollars in Canadian humanitarian aid to the Palestinians when it expires at the end of this month.

Baird delivered his message to an approving audience Sunday in Washington at the annual conference of the American Israel Public Affairs Committee.

Canada strongly opposed the Palestinians' successful effort in November to win elevated status at the UN, and has warned them against using it to file an international legal complaint against Israel.

It has also opposed the Palestinian bid to win membership with the United Nations cultural organization, UNESCO.

Eight former U.S. drug chiefs warned the federal government Tuesday that time is running out to nullify Colorado and Washington's new laws legalizing recreational marijuana use, and a United Nations agency also urged challenges to the measures it says violate international treaties.

The former Drug Enforcement Administration chiefs criticized Barack Obama's administration for moving too slowly to file a lawsuit that would force the states to rescind the legislation. Marijuana is illegal under federal law.

"My fear is that the Justice Department will do what they are doing now: do nothing and say nothing," former DEA administrator Peter Bensinger told The Associated Press in an interview Monday. "If they don't act now, these laws will be fully implemented in a matter of months."

Bensinger, who lives in the Chicago area, said if the federal government doesn't immediately sue the states it'll risk creating "a domino effect" in which other states legalize marijuana too.

Target's here, but the price isn't always right

Doubtful discounts.

Shoppers at three new Ontario stores find the savings don't match what's on offer in U.S.

The long-awaited arrival of U.S. discount giant Target means Canadians can now get their hands on the famed bull's-eye brand's wares without crossing the border — though the savings here might not equal those down south.

The retail chain, which opened its doors on Tuesday in three communities west of Toronto, has said Canadian customers will likely see a difference in pricing compared to items carried in its U.S. stores, with the company focused on being “competitively priced” with retailers in Canada.

A spokeswoman for Target Canada couldn't say exactly how that will play out on shelves in the newly launched Ontario stores in Guelph, Fergus and Milton or the dozens more locations the company expects to open across the country.

Pricing depends on a number of factors and it's difficult to give case-by-case examples or even narrow it down to categories of products more likely to warrant higher prices, Lisa Gibson said on Tuesday.

“In certain cases, the prices will actually be completely on par with U.S. prices and in some cases there might be some differences, but ... our overall goal is to make sure we're competitive with the marketplace,” she said, adding the company is also bringing in a five per cent reward program from the U.S.

At the Guelph store, a 2.95-litre bottle of Tide laundry detergent was priced at $15.99 on Tuesday, compared with $11.99 US on Target's American website. The same product was listed for $15.99 on the Canadian Tire website.

Behind them was Rhonda Weatherall, a local resident who was the first to visit Walmart's initial Guelph store several years ago. But she “wasn't overly impressed” after a walk through the Target store. “There wasn't a lot of great deals that I saw,” she said.

Dow wows. Stock index surges past all-time high

The Dow Jones industrial average closed at a record on Tuesday, beating the previous high it set in October 2007, before the financial crisis and the Great Recession.

The index rose 126 points, or one per cent, to 14,253, beating its previous record by 89 points. In fact, it is up nearly nine per cent this year, capping a remarkable comeback.

The Dow has more than doubled since falling to a low of 6,547 in March 2009 following the financial crisis and the Great Recession. Stocks have rebounded sharply since then with the help of a large dose of stimulus from the Federal Reserve, even as the economic recovery has been slow and steady rather than spectacular.

Retailer dispute. Martha takes the stand once more

Eight years after Martha Stewart was released from prison for lying about a stock trade, the home diva is now facing another legal mess that may not be easy to clean up.

Stewart, 71, took the stand in New York State Supreme Court on Tuesday morning. She is at the centre of a bitter legal battle between two of America's largest retailers — Macy's Inc. and J.C. Penney Co.

Macy's sued the media and merchandising company Stewart founded for breaching an exclusive contract when she signed a deal with Penney in December 2011 to open shops at most of its stores this spring.

Macy's, which has sold Martha Stewart products including towels and pots since 2007, is trying to block Penney from selling those products.

The trial is clearly more than a contract dispute. It's a courtroom drama that's unfolding about disloyalty and greed.

Testimony has portrayed Stewart as someone who turned her back on her good friend and Macy's CEO Terry Lundgren so she could enrich her company.

Such allegations only reinforce her reputation as a ruthless businesswoman and could hurt her brand and image, brand experts say. The allegations come when the business is struggling to fatten merchandising revenue as it tries to offset declines in its broadcast and publishing divisions.

DO PRICEY JEANS COME WITH DEEP POCKETS?

During a recent trip to Montreal, I found myself engaged in a fascinating discussion with a 30-year-old metrosexual male who was passionately extolling the virtues of the $450 pair of jeans he wore.

Now, I'm not one to dismiss the importance of personal style and presentation, but if I were Forrest Gump, I'd say, "I've worn lots o' jeans." While I can easily recognize an obvious difference in quality, I saw nothing that great in this particular pair.

I admitted to having owned a few pair of jeans for which I paid too much, even on sale. But I have never found them to improve as much with time as I've been told a good pair should.

Furthermore, $450 is not the most shocking price tag around.

It seems that even Ye Olde Levi's Shoppe now produces a hand-sewn, heavy-denim product that retails for $500.

Apparently, these magical pants will create the illusion that even the oddest-shaped individual is actually fit.

JUST SAYIN'

Mike Benhaim

Guest columnist

Keeping an open mind, I began to pay attention to brand-name jeans, such as Diesel and 7 For All Mankind, that ranged between $350 and $900. Yeah, you heard me! And that's nothing.

APO Jeans will sell you a custom product with pockets lined in pure silk, a perfectly polished silver zipper and a real diamond button for $4,000!

Why do I get the feeling there's a Kardashian behind this somewhere?

People of Earth, I beg you: for the sake of the children, "Stop the madness!"

They're jeans!

Jeans were meant to be comfortable and casual. The coolest ones are faded and frayed at the edges. They've been worn out in all the right places and can be passed on to someone else when your ass grows out of them.

Sure, you should expect to pay more now than you did in the '80s, but please.

There are plenty of good quality, excellent-fitting jeans available for under $100, and if you think they make you look fat then — you're fat! Work on that instead of putting all the pressure on your clothing.

Now, I can always forgive the feminine whimsy (within reason) if the result is extraordinary, but men: I speak on behalf of guys more and less macho than myself when I say to find a pair of jeans that feel good and spend $20 getting them altered to your liking. That's it.

If your girlfriend wants to play dress-up with you, as some women will do, and buys you a pair of the ol' rhinestone cowgirls, return them for a cheaper pair and buy her a very nice dinner with the change. If you don't, you'll be scheduled the next day for a mani-pedi and full-body manscaping that sounds much nicer than it feels.

Now, I can hardly wait for all the stylish club-goers I've offended to tweet the cheap out of me, but I ask that the rest of you find this online and tell me where you buy YOUR jeans and how much you pay for them.

Just sayin'.

Sally the camel had 1 maple leaf

MARTIN LIPMAN/CANADIAN MUSEUM OF NATURE/HANDOUT/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fossils offer climate clues

Dr. Natalia Rybczynski examines the fossil bones of the High Arctic camel laid out in a lab at the Canadian Museum of Nature.

The fossil evidence consists of about 30 bone fragments, which together form part of a limb bone of a camel. Found on Ellesmere Island, Nunavut, this is the northernmost discovery of camels in the Arctic, about 1,200 kilometres further north than the Yukon camel. The camel lived about three-and-a-half million years ago, when the region supported a boreal-type forest.

Back when this camel was browsing leaves and shoots, the entire global climate averaged about two or three degrees warmer than it is now.

That's about as much a difference as scientists say the Earth can undergo today without catastrophic changes. THE CANADIAN PRESS

What was the worst hashtag fail so far? We'll let you be the judge.

#susanalumparty

In November 2012, the PR team behind Britain's Susan Boyle was relentlessly mocked for their use of the 'susanalumparty' hashtag.

#RIMjobs

In what will likely stand as the greatest Canadian hashtag fail, the company formerly known as Research in Motion chose to court prospective employees via the 'RIMjobs' hashtag.

#McDstories

Last year, McDonald's asked its customers to share memories of dining at the fast-food joint via a 'McDstories' hashtag. Sooner than you could say 'happy meal,' the tag was flooded with accounts of finding fingernails in Big Macs and other sordid stories.

#Rogers1Number

In another Canadian example, Rogers paid Twitter to keep the 'Rogers1Number' tag atop the site's list of trending topics last March.

Of course, the hashtag allowed customers to publicize their complaints about poor service and perceived price-gouging.

#Hobbitch

Earlier this year, a Swiss company used the 'Hobbitch' hashtag to promote the latest installment in the Lord of the Rings movie franchise. It's a case of lost in translation, as .ch is the official domain name for Switzerland.

Re: Horsemeat big business in Alberta, published March 4.

The article indicates that only horses at their end of life are slaughtered.

This is not true! MANY YOUNG HEALTHY horses are slaughtered because the owners either don't know the possible outcome of taking their horse to an auction, or don't care.

There are also some irresponsible (using nice language here) horse breeders who purposely 'over breed'. They keep what they consider the cream of the crop and send the rest to auction.

Pat Rollock, Calgary

What is wrong with the world today? Can we not draw a line on which animals we will 'slaughter' and consume?

I am confused by the poll and growing acceptance of Canadians to consume horsemeat. Would you stand by and allow your cats and dogs to be slaughtered and then be eaten?

Ruth S., Whitby, Ont.

I was shocked by the article on horse meat. The reporter did not do enough research, the facts are that bute has been found in horsemeat often and it causes cancer in humans.

A century of Oz-inspired entertainment

Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

When New Girl star Zooey Deschanel was two years old she watched The Wizard of Oz every day. “I had a hard time understanding that I couldn’t go into the film,” she said, “because it felt so real to me.”

She’s not alone. It is one of the most watched and universally adored Hollywood films ever.

This weekend Disney hopes to add to the legacy of the original film with Oz the Great and Powerful, a Sam Raimi directed prequel starring James Franco and Mila Kunis. Ever wondered why the wicked witch was so wicked? Or how the wizard became the wizard? With a click of its ruby slippers this movie fills in the blanks. It’s not the first movie to try and woo an audience based on Oz and its citizens.

1910’s The Wonderful Wizard of Oz was the first Baum book to hit the screen. Almost seven decades later, two very different musicals were inspired by the Oz folks.

20th Century Oz is a 1976 Australian rock musical that reimagines the classic story set in 1970s Australia. Two years later director Sidney Lumet adapted the Broadway hit The Wiz for the screen, casting Motown superstars Diana Ross as Dorothy and Michael Jackson as The Scarecrow. Although it was, at the time, the most expensive film musical ever made, it wasn’t a hit in theatres.

Oz prequel brings Braff back to a ‘magical place’

Oz the Great and Powerful. Director Sam Raimi ‘at his finest’ says the former Scrubs star

scene@metronews.ca

Years ago I asked one of the original Wizard of Oz munchkins to explain the movie’s enduring appeal.

“Everybody can enjoy it,” said Karl Slover who was just two feet tall when he played the first trumpeter. “There’s no filthy language in it. I don’t see no bikinis! No nudist colonies! Kids can watch it and parents don’t have to worry because there’s nothing bad in there.”

I recently asked Zach Braff the same question in an interview to promote Oz the Great and Powerful, a prequel to the most beloved movie of all time.

“It reminds us of our childhood,” says the former Scrubs star, “and it reminds us of this magical place where crazy things happen. It is innocent and it is pure and it is amazing that it holds up. It was made in 1939, most kids don’t see other movies made in 1939.”

The new flick, co-starring James Franco, Mila Kunis, Rachel Weisz and Michelle Williams, is a state-of-the-art film, but it’s something that has been gestating for some time.

“I heard that Walt Disney always wanted to make an Oz movie,” he says. “There’s 13 books, so why not go back to that world and tell it from a 2013 perspective.”

The new film echoes the original, starting with black and white scenes shot in Kansas before moving to the eye-popping fantasy world of Oz. The movie’s modern twist is the addition of high tech tricks to make your eyes and ears dance. Braff calls the film’s visual and audio tweaks — increasing the depth of the 3D and adding in surround sound for the Oz scenes, for example — “Sam Raimi at his finest.”

Raimi, the director behind the Evil

Dead movies and a little franchise called Spider-Man, was the big reason Braff signed on to the project.

“I heard Sam wanted to meet me in his office. That’s a good call to get.”

Braff, who made his directorial debut on the 2004 indie film Garden State, calls Raimi a “wonderful mentor who let me watch this whole process.” Even on his days off the actor would go to the set to learn about big budget filmmaking from watching the old pro work on Oz’s enormous sets.

“Sam’s the biggest mensch on earth. The guy’s a saint. He’s too good to be true.”

Billy Corgan: a professional wrestler?

Billy Corgan might be best known as the frontman for The Smashing Pumpkins. But recently, he’s been dabbling in his other passion, professional wrestling.

Fans got a little peek into Corgan’s wrestling endeavours through an ad for Chicago furniture store Walter E. Smithe called Billy Corgan’s Musical Chairs. The commercial also features some of the wrestlers from Resistance Pro, a professional wrestling promotion company that Corgan started, as well as the singer himself.

Tim Smithe, the chief marketing officer for Walter E. Smithe, came up with the idea for the ad with his brothers. He was confident he could get Corgan to sign on, even though he realized getting the Smashing Pumpkins star was a “long shot.”

“I know a ‘second cousin’ of Billy, and tried that angle a few years ago, and it went nowhere,” he admitted to Metro World News.

It wasn’t until Smithe and Corgan met on Mancow, a talk show in Chicago, that he was able to make his pitch in person.

“There was good, simple chemistry right away, and one thing lead to another during the commercial break,” Smithe said.

“And then a few days later, someone from his staff called and said Billy is ready to ‘let the wrestling begin.’ My brothers and I were thrilled.”

Smithe said that Corgan was “chill, intelligent and confident” during the shoot.

“On the set he was down to earth, light-hearted, and loves his wrestling team from the bottom of his heart,” Smithe said.

What's going on with Kim's maternity wardrobe?

THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

As a woman who has grown a baby in her uterus, I know how hard it is to find good maternity clothing. So I can relate to Kim Kardashian's problem of finding a flattering pregnancy wardrobe. But I'm not sure why she's continuing to dress like she isn't pregnant.

I'm guessing her fashion-plate boyfriend, Kanye West, has something to do with it.

Case in point: as soon as Kardashian started to show, she decided to don this mesh-leather-feather-pants ensemble that made her resemble a motorcycle-riding ostrich. Then she wore this ill-fitting white ensemble on Saturday, which is made for a much taller, much less knocked-up person.

I'm not saying you can't look nice while pregnant. I'm just saying you should probably leave the high fashion at home.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

Swift: Back up those rumours, people

Taylor Swift has some news for everyone keeping track of her love life. "If you want some big revelation, since 2010 I have dated exactly two people," she tells Vanity Fair, referring to high schooler Conor Kennedy and One Direction member Harry Styles. "The fact that there are slide shows of a dozen guys that I either hugged on a red carpet or met for lunch or wrote a song with, it's just kind of ridiculous." But she doesn't let all the talk get to her. "One of these things I say to myself to calm myself down when I feel like it's all too much ... if there's a pregnancy rumour, people will find out it's not true when you wind up not pregnant," she says.

Bieber booed in London

Justin Bieber's troublesome stay in London continued this week when he got a late start at the O2 Arena, courting boos from an angry audience, according to the BBC. "Last night I was scheduled after three opening acts to go on stage at 9:35, not 8:30, but because of some technical issues I got on at 10:10, so I was 40 minutes late to [the] stage. There is no excuse for that and I apologize for anyone we upset," he tweeted.

If you are Cuba-bound this March Break, a day trip to Havana is a must. For a true taste of this time-warped capital, be sure to visit these must-see spots.

ON THE MOVE
Loren Christie

Take a vintage car ride

The country is home to approximately 60,000 classic American automobiles that industrious Cubans have kept running since the 1959 revolution. Although a very walkable city, an hour long tour is a great way to get oriented. Ask the driver to cruise along the Malecon, an eight kilometre boulevard stretching alongside the Atlantic Ocean. Either arrange in advance through Gran Car or find a driver in Parque Central.

Hot spots in Havana

Hang out in Parque Central

The buzz created by masses of Cubans and tourists passing through the park is infectious. The building housing the Cuban National Ballet is stunning. And no visit is complete without a photo in front of the Capitolio Nacional. It was completed in 1929 as a tribute to its sister building in Washington, D.C.

Soak up the atmosphere of a retro hotel

Built on a hill above the Malecon, the grand Hotel Nacional's 1930s tiled lobby and colonnaded veranda looking out to the sea is right out of a movie. The heart of Old Havana is sprinkled with smaller hotels, like Hotel Raquel, which have painstakingly restored their interior courtyards into an oasis of luxury. All are worth a peek.

Get a glimpse of glory at Plaza Vieja

Check out the Plaza Vieja. It has been undergoing a decade-long restoration and gives a glimpse of what Havana could look like if returned to its former glory. Make sure you also wander the narrow, congested, delightfully intriguing, cobbled surrounding streets of the old city. The UNESCO World Heritage site contains almost 1,000 buildings of historic importance.

Try a mojito, a la Hemingway

El Floridita and La Bodeguita del Medio are the two most famous ones, largely due to their affiliation with author Ernest Hemingway. Word is he preferred the daiquiris at the former and mojitos at the later. I tried both and agree. In addition to pouring over the throwback decor, the frequent appearance of live bands gives an opportunity for a taste of the vibrant Cuban music.

Many a meet-and-greet. Tackling the tech job interview takes time

Practise that pitch. Attend interview workshops, speak to a career advisor or participate in a mock interview. ISTOCK

You got an interview. Congratulations!

It's likely you searched for jobs on websites, leveraged your network and wowed a recruiter with your resumé and cover letter. But you're not done selling yourself just yet.

University of Waterloo career advisor Tanya Gillert says tech graduates can expect to be screened by an in-house recruiter or a member of the company's HR department before one or two technical phone screens and up to four on-site interviews with the employer.

"In an interview, recruiters are determining if they like you, if you know your stuff and if you are passionate about your field and specialty," she says. "Employers want to know if an applicant is adaptable, flexible and productive."

Here's a list of Gillert's top tips on how to ace the technology job interview and get the job.

Know the employer

Research the company's structure, history and mission. Learn about what the company sells, the clients they target and how they compete in their industry. Find out what motivates management and employees.

How can you tell an interviewer that you'll fit in seamlessly with the company's culture if you know nothing about them?

Do your research

How can you tell an interviewer that you'll fit in seamlessly with the company's culture if you know nothing about them?

Tanya Gillert
Career advisor

Know the position

Employers will list the skills, knowledge and qualifications they expect someone they hire to possess. Read the job listing and show them that you meet their requirements, Gillert says.

You can expect technical questions to be tailored to the role. Be prepared to write code, talk about code and find any errors in code quickly.

Know yourself

Know your strengths and weaknesses. Practise coding and solving problems in front of people. Be prepared to answer the types of questions Gillert says technology students can expect to be asked, including:

- coding and common algorithms
- design and redesign
- puzzles and brain teasers
- number theory

Practice how to solve these types of problems and if you don't know something, learn it.

Looking for a job? Lose the white socks

Suit yourself!

Formal interview attire is preferred by one-third of CIOs

HOSKIN

When it comes to information technology interviews, interviewees can never be too formal.

Students and recent grads looking to become IT professionals may want to trade in their casual interview attire for something more suitable: a suit. The statistics don't lie; in a recent Robert Half Technology survey, 33 per cent of CIOs said a suit was the most appropriate attire for someone interviewing for an IT job. Additionally, 29 per cent favoured tailored separates, while another 29 per cent prefer khakis and collared shirts.

It takes only a few seconds to form a first impression, and for a short interview, those seconds may make or break your chances of being hired.

Here are a few technology job interview attire guidelines:

Be comfortable

You want to be as confident and comfy as possible! If you are physically uncomfortable, this will show in your behaviour during the interview. Women, this means saving those stilettos for the club, not the office.

Don't overlook the small things

Make sure your shoes match

So fresh and so clean. An iron and a wash could lead to interviews and work. ISTOCK

Mama knows...

Ensure you are wrinkle and stain-free, well groomed and clean. If you are unsure, ask a professional ... or your mom.

Olivia Hoskin

your belt (or purse), and never, ever wear white socks! Ensure you are wrinkle and stain-free, well groomed and clean. If you are unsure, ask a professional ... or your mom.

Everything in moderation

Choose one "thing" that interviewers can remember you by, like a bow in your hair or a uniquely-coloured dress shirt, but ultimately, the interview is about your qualities and skills, not your fashion sense. Remember to avoid overwhelming perfumes/colognes, excessive or inappropriately-coloured make-up and distracting jewelry.

Shut it off!

This is an obvious step that if forgotten, is often an immediate deal-breaker. Skip the silent setting and turn your phone off when you have interviews. Be present and distraction free.

Webcam interviews are still interviews

To ensure that you are distraction-free for webcam interviews, book a study room at school for an hour or two. This ensures a quiet and distraction-free zone. If you do not have access to a private room, just be sure to dress professionally from head to toe.

Dressing on a dime

As a student or recent grad, how does one go about purchasing such expensive interview accessories?

- Personally, as a student, I am on a tight budget when it comes to pretty much everything. Due to this I have had to search far and wide to find interview clothing at reasonable prices. Some popular methods include outlet stores, coupons and customer reward programs, shopping during the off-season and hitting up thrift stores.

- Of these suggestions, my favourites are shopping the off-season and thrifting. End of season sales are excellent for discovering cheap but new items that you can either save for the next year or wear immediately. Interviews in March are perfect because you can buy end-of-winter items and use them for a month before it gets too warm.

- If you want even cheaper clothing you can visit liquidation sales or thrift stores. Some of my favourites include the Salvation Army, Talize and Value Village.

Moir, Virtue at their best ahead of worlds

World Figure Skating Championships. 'Our programs are better than they have been all year': Virtue

john.matisz@metronews.ca

The darlings of this year's World Figure Skating Championships, which will be held in London next week, say they've "polished" their silver medal-winning routine from the 2013 Four Continents Championships.

"You could say we made some mistakes in our free program, technically," admitted Ilderton native Scott Moir, one half of Canada's best ice dancing pair.

It didn't help when his partner, Londoner Tessa Virtue, experienced a strong leg cramp during the free dance portion of February's Four Continents meet. The injury forced a temporary stoppage to their program, ultimately costing them a chance at standing atop the podium.

"To be honest, we were really, really pushing it in training," said Virtue, when asked of the cramp's origins on a Tuesday media call. "We were really trying to improve on our speed and power, and the intensity of our training increased significantly."

Virtue insists the injury is a non-issue as they eye a third world championship title, this time on home ice at Budweiser Gardens.

Although Virtue and Moir are ranked No. 2 by the International Skating Union, lagging behind Americans Meryl Davis and Charlie White, the 2010 Olympics gold medalists feel confident.

"Our programs are better than they have been all year," Virtue, 23, said. "The plan was to peak at worlds and I think we're right on track."

Moir, 25, calls the pair's programs — And The Waltz Goes On for short dance; Carmen for free dance — ambitious. They arrived home from two of the past three world championships with gold in tow.

"It can be frustrating when you push it early in your season. When you go out and compete with a tough, good program, you might not get rewarded right away," he said.

The pair, together since 1997, has expressed they will likely part ways after the 2013 Olympics in Sochi, Russia. This means London could be their final world championships.

"It's hard to believe (Sochi) is coming up so quickly," Virtue said.

Holzer passes audition in Toronto

Korbinian Holzer GETTY IMAGES

The Toronto Maple Leafs' mandate with Korbinian Holzer was to play him in the NHL this season and gauge if the native of Munich could play at that level. Consider that mandate fulfilled.

The club announced Tuesday afternoon it had signed the 25-year-old defenceman to a two-year contract extension. Details were not confirmed, but the deal is believed to be worth $1.575 million US.

Holzer, who was in the last year of a contract that pays him $575,000 this season, will earn $725,000 in the first year of the deal and $850,000 in the final year. He was eligible for unrestricted free agency this coming off-season.

Holzer was selected in the fourth round, 111th overall in the 2006 entry draft. He has spent the past several seasons gaining experience with the AHL's Toronto Marlies.

Holzer has played 16 games for the Leafs this season, and coach Randy Carlyle has not been afraid to work him 15-plus minutes a game. His highest ice time was 23:41 on Feb. 7 at Winnipeg.

Like the 18 other Ontario Hockey League teams, the Owen Sound Attack will not win its season series versus the London Knights.

Even if they manage to snap London's seven-game winning streak on Wednesday, the 2011 OHL champs still drop the series 4-2.

However, a few factors are up against the Knights this time around. The Attack won the last meeting; Owen Sound can't be too happy about London locking up first place in the Western Conference; and the Knights' best players, Seth Griffith and Scott Harrington, are sidelined.

Then there's the absence of home-ice advantage.

"It's a tough rink to play in," said London forward Max Domi, referring to the Harry Lumley Arena in Owen Sound. "The fans get on you pretty good."

The Knights have six games remaining in their 68-game regular-season schedule. Four of them involve facing lower-tier clubs; all of them are away from the friendly confines of Budweiser Gardens.

"This road trip could be a really good thing for us," said Domi, who is tied for the team lead in points with 82. "We're a close-knit team right now, but could get closer."

Sunday's 6-1 thumping of the Kitchener Rangers should help, as powerful Knights winger Josh Anderson dropped the mitts in response to a check to the head of linemate Chris Tierney. It was his sixth fight of the season.

"That's one of the jobs you've got to do," said the Columbus Blue Jackets fourth-rounder. "If you're a big guy like me, you have to stick up for your teammates."

The six-foot-two, 193-pounder has grown seven inches and put on 40 pounds in about Promising 17-year-old Jacob Jammes also fought in the Kitchener game. It was the offensively minded forward's debut in the OHL boxing ring.

Anderson remembers the feeling well — and the ribbing afterwards. "We fooled around with him after the game, said a couple of things," he said. "He had a smile on his face though, so it's all good."

Knights short-listed to host 2014 MasterCard Memorial Cup

The London Knights are one of three teams selected to make formal bid presentations to host the 2014 MasterCard Memorial Cup.

The Barrie Colts and the Windsor Spitfires join London on the short list.

All three clubs will present before the 2014 MasterCard Memorial Cup Site Selection Committee on April 17 in Toronto.

The Knights will have one hour to plead their case and are allowed to have five people in the room to impress the committee.

"We're going to have a very compelling bid," said Knights governor Trevor Whiffen.

A major component of the bidding process is the competitive level of the team, and the Knights should have a clear advantage there, according to Whiffen.

"We may be returning as many as 15 kids next year that will have already been drafted by the NHL," he said.

The successful bid will be announced in May.

PGA. McIlroy says he regrets walking off course

Rory McIlroy says he should have finished his second round at the Honda Classic, telling Sports Illustrated magazine that "it was not the right thing to do" to walk out after eight holes of his second round.

McIlroy was 7 over par for the round and headed toward another missed cut when he hit his second shot into the water on the 18th and abruptly withdrew without finishing the hole. On his way to the parking lot, he told reporters that his head was not in the right place. He later issued a statement that his wisdom tooth was causing pain.

"It was a reactive decision," McIlroy told the magazine in a telephone interview Sunday night. "What I should have done is take my drop, chip it on, try to make a 5 and play my hardest on the back nine, even if I shot 85. What I did was not good for the tournament, not good for the kids and the fans who were out there watching me. It was not the right thing to do."

The 23-year-old from Northern Ireland said his lower wisdom teeth are growing sideways and he has been prescribed a painkiller, which he did not use Friday. Even so, he said it was frustration over his swing that led to him leaving.

McIlroy switched to Nike equipment late last year after signing an endorsement contract said to be upward of $20 million a year. The world's No. 1 player says his swing has been a bigger problem than the new clubs, and he was practising with swing coach Michael Bannon the afternoon that he withdrew.

He is playing the Cadillac Championship at Doral this week and is to speak to the media on Wednesday.

Volkswagen's designers have done as great a job fashioning the Beetle Convertible as they did with the hatchback and have even succeeded in creating a less miniscule trunk. Just make sure you pack only the essentials. To be fair, the split-folding rear seat lets you extend the stowage area when two or three passengers are aboard.

2013 VW Beetle Convertible

- Type. Two-door, front-wheel-drive convertible
- Engine (hp): 2.5-litre DOHC I5 (170)
- Transmissions. Six-speed automatic
- Base price (incl. destination). $30,300

Engine

The five-cylinder does a decent job at around-town speeds, but the power tends to fall off at highway velocities.

Only a single powertrain is being offered in Beetle Convertibles sold in Canada: A 170-horsepower 2.5-litre five-cylinder. Our fortunate American cousins will also be able to select a turbo-charged 200-horsepower 2.0-litre four-cylinder, or a 140-horsepower 2.0-litre turbo-diesel.

Roof

The soft top is triple lined on the outside and has three layers of insulation on the inside to minimize noise. Two electric motors raise and lower the top in 9.5 and 11 seconds, respectively, at vehicle speeds up to 50 km/h. The top no longer extends beyond the rear deck when folded, which makes for a much tidier appearance.

Review. Volkswagen's drop-top has arrived in all its attention grabbing glory

When Volkswagen introduced the Beetle hatchback for the 2012 model year, you had to suspect the convertible edition was hard on its heels.

Convertible Beetles have been around since 1949, when the first rear-engine, air-cooled Type 15 was launched. VW sold more than 330,000 of them worldwide over the next 32 years, then cranked out another 235,000 New Beetle Convertibles from 2003 until the 2010 model year when it was put out to pasture.

The third-generation Beetle (the "New" is gone) Convertible that goes on sale in mid-February maintains the tradition, but in a less-retro way.

Visually, the body is slightly lower, but is now a substantial 8.5 centimetres wider and about 15 centimetres longer than the old New Beetle. That means significantly more leg and elbowroom, for both front- and rear-seat passengers. Front headroom is nearly as generous as before despite the lower profile, while rear-seat headroom actually increases slightly.

The Beetle Convertible benefits from a more rigid body architecture with 20 per cent more resistance to bending and twisting. This is helpful since convertibles don't have a roof structure to join the back and the front of the car together. The only real support is in the floor.

Base Beetle Convertibles fall under the Comfortline trim name and include most power and climate accouterments plus a set of roll bars behind the back seat that immediately pop up should a tip-over be detected. Heated front seats and leatherette seat covers are included, but beware of burning skin on hot summer days.

The convertible's interior is similar to the coupe's, which is to say stylish and inviting. You no longer face acres of dashboard surface as in the previous model, since the front seats are no longer positioned near the middle of the car.

The High-line adds a genuine leather interior, sport bucket seats, push button start, 17-inch wheels (16s are standard) and fancier interior/exterior trim.

High-line models can also be enhanced with a 400-watt nine-speaker Fender audio system and touch-screen navigation.

In content and usable space, the Beetle Convertible represents a giant leap forward. It's no longer a cutesy toy car, but should now resonate with performance-minded buyers who would prefer the option of bringing a few friends along to savour the open-air experience.

The Chevrolet SS: It's about time

Auto Pilot. It's been 17 long years since Chevy released a model like this

At last weekend's big NASCAR race in Daytona, Chevrolet officially unveiled its newest sedan, the 2013 Chevrolet SS.

When it arrives in dealerships at the end of the year, it will be the first time in 17 years that Chevrolet will offer a rear-drive V8-powered sedan in North America.

Hallelujah

I guess I have a soft spot for Chevrolet rear-drive V8 sedans, because they were what my father drove during the 1970s, when I was a very impressionable and car-needy teenager. He taught me to drive in his 1971 Chevrolet Impala.

Good on Chevrolet for realizing that the brand needs to have at least one of these beasts in its catalogue. People yearn for them, it's part of Chevrolet's heritage, and it corrects that strained NASCAR visual universe, where Chevrolet-based NASCAR teams have been covering their ferocious rear-drive V8 racecars with body shells based on Impala stylings. The Impala has been a neutered, front-drive V6 sedan since 2000.

No coincidence that the NASCAR Chevrolet SS race car also debuted at the Daytona race. And right on script, five-time series champion Jimmie Johnson, in the No. 48 Lowe's Chevrolet SS, took home the checkered flag.

The Chevrolet SS also upholds the "SS" designation with pride and purpose. (The brand has traditionally reserved those letters to designate high-performance Chevys.) The new SS will be motivated by essentially the same, newly-engineered 6.2-litre small-block V8 used in the 2013 Corvette — good for 415-hp and 415 lb-ft of torque. The only transmission is a six-speed automatic with manual shifters mounted on the steering wheel.

Rear-drive V8 sedans were once ubiquitous. Now they are premium pieces, which is the way they should be I guess. Not too many of us need that much engine. But as we've seen time and time again, when it comes to automobile love, or any kind of love for that matter, need has nothing to do with it.

Since teens tend to be more tech-savvy than older drivers, they may have a false sense of security about multi-tasking on the road. ISTOCK

Tickets don't stop teens from distracted driving

Driving Force. Safety biggest deterrent, while fines would only stop 7 per cent, poll finds

drive@metronews.ca

Cars are safer today than they've ever been, but drivers aren't necessarily so. Car crashes are the number one cause of death among Canadian teenagers and recent statistics indicate that distracted driving is a factor in as many as 20 to 80 per cent of all collisions.

"We're targeting teens at anything to do with distracted driving," says Carmine Venditti, agency manager for Allstate Insurance Canada. "We list such things as eating, texting, speaking on the phone or putting on make-up while driving. These are things that are not keeping you focused on the road."

In a recent online poll, Allstate found that while 94 per cent of those responding said they were aware they could be charged for distracted driving, most of them cited safety as the main reason for staying off the phone and focusing on driving. Only seven per cent said that the threat of a ticket was the real deterrent.

Some 89 per cent of high school students polled, age 13 to 17, also said they would voice concern if they were riding in a vehicle and the driver was distracted.

"It's difficult to be age-specific, but we're seeing a lot more distracted driving at a younger age level," Venditti says. "The numbers drop somewhat as the age group gets older, but distracted driving is happening to adults too. What we saw was that the teenagers are bringing this over to their parents, and we're hearing, 'I see my dad doing this, and I tell him not to do it.'"

One problem, according to Venditti, is that younger drivers are usually more tech-savvy and for them, texting while they're doing something else isn't all that difficult. "Multi-tasking is something that's easy for them, and they think they can text and drive," she says. "People say they won't do it, but it's difficult to know if they will. The legislation isn't scaring them, so we're hoping they'll understand the impact and the consequences on them and their families."

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

There is no point complaining if you are forced to do something against your will today because it won't make any difference. Anyway, why would you complain when it will work in your favour?

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You may be practical and methodical by nature but don't immerse yourself in details too deeply today or you may lose sight of the wider picture — a picture that looks brighter by the moment.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

If you have ambitions to be someone important then this is clearly a make or break time. It won't just happen as if by magic, of course, but it will happen if you are determined to make it happen. Get busy.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

A friend is opposing you only because they genuinely believe they are acting in your best interests. Inform them that you are the one who decides what your interests are, though be polite about it.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Cut back on your workload over the next few days, even if it means you earn less than before. Don't worry that you won't be able to make ends meet. You should know by now that fate usually provides.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

If there is a project that needs completing, now is the time to make that extra effort. If there is a relationship that needs rescuing, now is the time to kiss and make up.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

It seems you are weighed down by domestic chores. Fortunately, beneficial events over the next two days will lighten your load and free up time for more enjoyable things. Love is in the air.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Keep your plans under wraps so no one has the chance to steal your ideas. One of the most creative times of the year will begin quite soon, so it's OK to put your own needs first.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

If you allow your emotions to get the better of you today then squabbles are inevitable, but if you refuse to give in to negative emotions then you will sail through the day with ease. The choice is yours.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Think before you speak today but don't hold back once you have decided what you want to say. Not everyone will be happy with your observations but what matters is that you call it as you see it.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Resist the urge to splash out on things you don't really want or need. Impulse buying will deplete your resources faster than you thought possible, so let someone else hold the purse strings.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

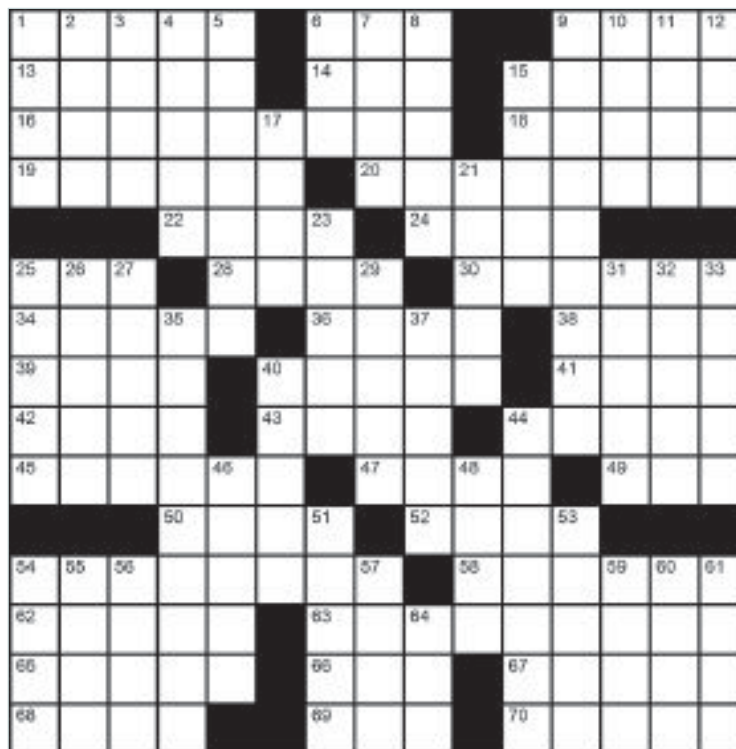

It's time to start something that delights you. It does not matter what your work or family responsibilities may be you must make time for what you enjoy.
